French-Canadian Leader to be a Peer of Great Britain.

If, as has been announced, King Edward elevated Canada's prime minister, Wilfrid Laurier, to the peerage, it will be the first instance where a French-Canadian has been thus honored. Canada's share in the distribution of like honors is now limited to Lord Mount-Stephen and Lord Strathcona and Mount-Royal, both Scotch Canadians.

Wiltrid Laurier, upon whom baronial honors are to fall, is just 60 years of age. He was born in St. Lin, Que., and is a graduate of L'Assumption College and McGill University. By profession he is a barrister, but since he first was elected to parliament in 1871 he has devoted himse f to politics.

He was minister of the inland revenue lepartment in the MacKenzie cabinet in 1877, and in 1891 was chosen to lead the liberal party. His splendid generalship has amply justified the faith reposed in him, and the victory of his party at the polls has given him the ighest elective office in Canada, made him a member of the leng's provy council and won for him the grand cross of St.

Michael and St. George. This is the more remarkable in view of is French discent. But Sir Willrid is a born leader of men. His magnetic per sonality makes even his political opponents personal triends, and his wonler ul command of language has carried many a hard-fought contest Sir Wilfrid's wife, Lady Zoe Laurier, married him nearly 30 years ago when he was a struggling young lawver. Although he has reached such a high position. Sir Wilfrid is not by any means a wealthy man. Neither he nor Lord Mount-Stephen has children, and the Stratheona beir is a daughter.

New ties have been strung from Essex Junction to Cambridge lunction and a force of men will soon be at work placing them. A number of acres of fine gravelland have been bought in Jericho and a side track has been built and the entire road will be ballasted. It will take several months to complete the work, but when done the improvement will be one that has long been needed. The work is along the line pursued by the company during the past few years in its entire system.

In the Streets of Cairo,

One of the most picturesque places in the world is undoubtedly the Egyptian city of Cairo, and not the least of its Calf Scour Cure attractions are the varied and often musical street cries which assail the ears on all sides.
